Polar bears in Svalbard

I worked as a photoguide for Canadian cruise company OneOcean Expeditions last August. My duties involved inspiring and teaching the amateur photographers on board during two expeditions around Svalbard. We sailed north to the edge of the ice where we found this healthy bear lolling around. On land we found a polar bear apparently sleeping – but the emaciated bear had starved to death, presumably due to climate change.

My last newsletter was written a year ago - time is flying.

I spent three weeks over Christmas guiding skiers in the ski resort of Verbier, Switzerland, for the Ski Club of GB. Dodgy avalanche conditions prompted the purchase of an avalanche airbag (shown inflated for testing purposes).

The Stormchasers

I was invited to British Columbia to join the "Stormchaser" media trip along the "Powder Highway", writing and photographing for "The Skier and Snowboarder" magazine. The concept was simple: follow the "stormtrack" through legendary Canadian resorts from Kicking Horse to Fernie, in a rockstar-style luxury coach. With no fixed itinerary, the guides can find the freshest powder by helicopter, cat, boat, skidoo and skins. Accommodation: expedition tents followed by luxury spa resort.

I sat the Reservoir Simulation exam for the MSc at Heriot Watt University in October. Some very scary mathematics can reveal the size and nature of an oilfield if hydrocarbons are discovered! All

Forth Replacement Crossing

All three of the Queensferry Crossing's towers are simultaneously under construction - the bridge is truly out of the water and heading upwards. Above: the construction activity on the water can be seen through the almost completed Southern Approach Viaduct Pier.

Family photography

With the approach of summer - now is the time to get around to that family portrait, or at least your little folk before they grow up. Indoors in our state-of-the-art photographic studio, or outdoors, or both!

Scottish Furniture

I have had a few photoshoots for the talented master craftsmen from the Scottish Furniture Makers' Association. The chairs are by Robert Thomson www.robthomsonfurniture.com and the exams completed, but still two projects remain.

Advanced Photographer magazine

I have written and photographed for a few feature articles for "Advanced Photographer" magazine. Above: an article on where to photograph in our beautiful city of Edinburgh, and below an interview on star photographer Kris Williams.

Getty images

I spend spare work time submitting images to stock libraries Getty and Photostock. There's no point having zillions of images in hard drives when they could be enjoyed by others and bring in some cash.

Charity 24 hour swim

I am taking part in a 24 hour fund-raising swim challenge with Edinburgh Triathletes on Friday 11 April in memory of our club coach, Andrew McMenigall, and to raise money for the Kirsten Scott Memorial Trust. Please sponsor Edinburgh Triathletes at <http://www.justgiving.com>

And a huge thank you for helping me raise money for Macmillan Cancer Support last year when I trained for Ironman Austria 2013, and completed the race in just over 14 hours. Your donations raised over £1000. Also special thanks to Karl Zeiner for his coaching. <http://www.dzfitness.co.uk> The Ironman triathlon is a 2.4 mile swim, 112 mile cycle followed by a marathon (26.2 miles). All went well until the marathon - my feet were craving fluffy slippers - not trainers. But the pain was nothing compared to that endured by

Why not consider a location photoshoot in one of your favourite places? This family chose Dubai but I can recommend lovely places closer to home!
